

Shared Print Archive Network - Phase 1, 2012-2013

Overview

In Phase 1 of the Shared Print Archive Network, archiving efforts are focused retrospectively on widely held print journals with digital equivalents and post-cancellation access rights. Factors such as institutional participation in programs that allow post-cancellation access (PORTICO, CLOCKSS) and publisher e-journal licensing terms were considered when selecting titles. Journals published in Canada were not considered as candidates for this round of archiving. This phase, with its retrospective focus, encompasses only volumes published to the end of 2012, even if the journal continues in print beyond December 2012.

Phase 1 involves Archive Supporters and Archive Holders. In August 2012, Archive Holders will receive lists of nominated titles and their institutions' holdings statements. Once Archive Holders have confirmed that the holdings are accurate, agreed to hold those volumes until the retention date (December 31, 2022), and recorded the commitment in local catalogue records, COPPUL staff will distribute a list of those titles and holdings to all SPAN libraries. At this point, libraries that have not committed to retain those titles may begin the withdrawal process if they choose. Withdrawal decisions are made at the local level: libraries are not required to discard any materials. Since Phase 1 follows the distributed archive model, all materials will remain at the owning library; no materials will be relocated. COPPUL staff will track the numbers of titles and volumes withdrawn as a measure of assessing program performance.

As of August 9, 2012, 1,721 titles have been nominated for archiving; these titles are distributed among ten Archive Holders.
